

CARRANO

FALL WINTER 2018

Exuberant and cool

Carrano's 2018 fall winter collection is the epitome of cool, exuberant footwear. It explores new alternative materials and boasts a color palette ranging from glossy to matte. The brand also offers the leading trends for next seasons, with the cool look of sock boots, extra pointy toes, the opulence of sequins, combat boots full of attitude, and a permanent line of pumps heels with a range of different heels and uppers.

As the central feature for the season, a wide variety of boots is also available. These include basic models with different heel heights and toe shapes, sock boots with extra pointy and elongated toes, lace-up combat boots with ridged soles, exploring a bolder, heavier look, and exuberant sequined over the knee models.

The novelty in this collection is in the materials used. The sequins used in different models mean the shoes can be worn day and night, while softer fabric allows for folds and volume, as well as all the comfort of stretch fabric, patent leather, Lurex, and Carrano classics like nubuck and eco-leather.

The color palette explores glossy as well as silver and gold metallic finishes, already considered neutral for several seasons. Special attention is given to white with hints of red, the seasons coolest combination.

Bags from the collection are structured models in the same colors as the shoes, with black and burgundy featuring strongly, and bold straps in striped fabric or wide chains.
